

After graduating from Wasatch High School, Wayne spent one year at Utah State University. Then he left there to fill a two year LDS Mission in the Texas North Spanish speaking missionfield. He learned to speak the language of these people and to appreciate their culture. After returning home, he returned for his second year at Utah State, then he attended the BYU for the next two years, where he earned his degree in agriculture and economics.

To pay for his tuition and other expenses as well as the car he needed to commute to and from school, Wayne leased some ground and farmed it. The last two years of his education, he joined the National Ski Patrol and served at Sundance Ski Resort.

In the early Spring of 1976, a family friend set up a blind date for Wayne and a student from New Mexico. Kathy Porter was Wayne's date and they liked one another well enough that they kept right on dating. They learned that they attended church in the same LDS Ward but had never happened to meet.

Kathy was born in Raton, N.M. but had lived most of her life in Albuquerque, a city about twice the size of Salt Lake City. At the BYU, she was majoring in music and humanities.

From the time she was a small girl, Kathy had two great loves, her piano playing and her horses. She learned to ride English Hunt Seat Jumping. In her music, she had very good teachers. The last one was Adalina Timofeyew, a granddaughter of Puccini of operatic fame — he composed Madam Butterfly. Her husband was an Operatic Singer and they went on frequent tours to exhibit their talents. For all of the care and training her parents provided for her, Kathy is very grateful and she has shown it by working hard to do the best she could.

Kathy said that she knew she would leave schooling and marry Wayne soon after she met him. They were married in November of 1976, in the Salt Lake LDS Temple.

In the fall of 1977, they moved to Albuquerque, where they bought a home and had three beautiful children. Ion Michael born December of 1977; Darcey Ellyn was born in December of 1978; and Audry Anne was born July, 1980. They are very healthy, happy children.

Kathy said that Wayne was happy in his work. He had sold insurance for Equitable Life for the first two years. Then he had left that job to become assistant manager in a business that rented out and installed electronic games, juke boxes and other electronic items. Kathy's mother was happy to be with the children often so Kathy could practice her piano or ride her horse. They were all enjoying their way of life but they wanted more for the children, and Wayne still wanted to run a farm where the children could learn responsibility while young enough to accept it as part of a way of life. They agreed that rural living would be good for all of them. They moved back to Heber City in May of 1981. In July, Wayne decided he wanted to work in Safeway as a clerk and to continue with running the farm. In this way,

Primary Children's Hospital Dec. 5. Bryan has had physical therapy at the hospital and is able to walk with a walker now. It was a real celebration Saturday as he came home to be a member of the Mathis family with his cousin-brother, Jason Mathis, 8, and cousin-sister, Mary Ann, who is 5 who are happy to have a new brother.

Bryan's grandparents, Reese and Donna Godfrey called Bryan from their home in Idaho. His grandparents, Don and Eileen Lighthall of Ogden were here to welcome Bryan home. Bryan is excited with snow which he was not familiar with. In two months, Bryan will be able to walk with crutches and then start kindergarten.

Lynda Nicol and her parents, Alma and Olga, were hosts for the University of Utah 16th Ward Young Adults Friday night and Saturday with Bishop Bryan

It Makes

Dear Readers: Here's a fun way to serve eggs, especially for children: With a cookie cutter or tumbler, cut circles out of the center of slices of bread. Arrange the remaining "frames" on the griddle on which you've melted some butter or margarine. Break an egg into each cut-out circle. When bread is toasted on one side and egg is sufficiently done, turn and brown other side. For those who like eggs sunny side up, toast bread on one side in the fry pan, turn, and then add egg. We call this, "Egg in a frame."

Dear Vi: Why don't manufacturers put zippers or plackets at the necks of pullover sweaters and tee shirts for children? You have to almost pull off their little ears and noses to get some of them over the child's head.

With such garments, I open the shoulder seam, finish the edges neatly, then sew a button on one side and a loop on the other. This saves a lot of frustration and tears.

Dear Vi: When popping corn the old-fashioned way in a deep pan on top of the stove, if you put a paper towel between the lid and the pot, the oil won't spatter when the corn starts popping.

Dear Vi: Instead of buying cleaner for eyeglasses, I fill a small bottle with a spout top with rubbing alcohol. It does a good job and costs practically nothing since most of us always have rubbing alcohol on hand anyway.
